UPPER KEYS — As Monroe County reopens the economy and eases COVID-19-related restrictions, many parents are heading back to work only to worry over if they can safely send their already restless children to summer camps.

Although camps are going to look different this year with smaller groups spread out in the fields and pools, the kids will still be at play.

Summer camps, which have implemented COVID-19 safety protocols adhering to CDC guidelines, may take kids’ and staff temperatures daily, enforce frequent hand washing and clean shared equipment daily. As for pools, there is no evidence that COVID-19 can spread to people through the water in pools, hot tubs or water playgrounds, according to the CDC.

While there are hundreds of virtual online camps, which may better suit some families, here are a few traditional camps in the area:

• The Upper Keys YMCA is offering summer camps from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday with before and after camp care available. Campers are asked to bring a reusable water bottle, a healthy lunch and two snacks, sunscreen and a hat. For more information, contact Jessica Beiermeister at 954-732-6869.

• Dolphins Plus Bayside is offering weeklong marine science summer camp for ages 6 to 10. Campers learn many subjects through hands-on science-based activities including local ecology and dolphin communication and behavior, marine mammal lessons and shows, and coastal exploration.
Camp weeks begin Monday, June 22, and run weeklong through July 13. Camp hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. with before and after care options available. The cost is $350 per student per week with discounts available for first responders.

Dolphins Plus Bayside is also offering a Junior Dolphin Explorers Summer Camp program for ages 11 to 14.

This is a camp for dolphin lovers and budding marine scientists. Campers will investigate dolphin intelligence, flukes and flippers, majestic manatees, and how to help stranded marine mammals. Each day will be filled with hands-on learning activities, marine mammal lessons and demonstrations, behind-the-scenes tours and coastal exploration.

The next junior camp will be offered July 20.

Attendees of both camp programs are asked to bring attire for outdoor activities and swimming, and ample sunscreen. Campers should bring a lunch kept cool in an insulated lunchbox, a towel, mosquito repellent, a hat, sunglasses, water shoes and a camera.
